A War of Revenge

ANXIETY IN BERLIN IN REGARD TO THE PREPARATIONS FOR WAR BY PRESIDENT THIERS—THE REORGANIZATION OF THE FRENCH ARMY—A THOUSAND MORE CANNONS IN FRANCE THAN IN GERMANY

[Berlin Times Berlin Correspondence, March 29]

Reviewing the policy of M. Thiers in the light of his own utterances our politicians begin to be somewhat disquieted at the prospect the veteran statesman presents to them. I will communicate the sentiment I have repeatedly heard expressed on this important topic. Your readers will remember M. Thiers protest against the war, and the reasons he gave for his opposition after the crushing blows sustained by his countrymen. Having in the decisive sitting of the Legislative Assembly of the 15th of July 1870 cautioned his colleagues against a hasty and premature war, he on the 11th of August again ascended the tribune to explain the motives which had prompted his wise, but, alas! unheeded counsel. "France," he then said, "was unprepared for a campaign. He had had the proofs in his hand for more than a fortnight, but dared not publish them on the eve of the war. The information he thus early possessed was his principal motive for dissuading the Chamber from the rash and dangerous course they had entered upon." Such were the words of M. Thiers after Forbach and Woerth. They have not been forgotten in this country. Not for a moment did M. Thiers think of censuring the policy of invading an inoffensive country. He only blamed the indiscretion which committed the act without sufficient force. It must be admitted that his reasoning on this notable occasion was in perfect harmony with his antecedents as a writer and as a statesman. As he had always held that the superiority of his race over their neighbors must be vindicated by force of arms, so he did not object to the war which no one man had done more to bring on than he, but he condemned all the more severely a want of foresight, calculated to lose him and his countrymen the anticipated fruits of his many years teaching of the Chauvinist creed. So much for his opinions immediately previous to the downfall of the regime preceding his own.

HAVE HIS VIEWS BEEN MODIFIED SINCE?

In answering this question German politicians refer to what he has been pleased to utter within the course of the last few weeks. M. Thiers on one occasion said: "France must have an army, that she may resume the rank she has always held in the world." And again: "Until France has recovered from her disasters we must be content to act as international firemen, and extinguish every spark that might endanger peace." And further: "Our chassepot beats the needle-gun hollow. Our new cannon is vastly superior to the Prussian. Our officers are the most intelligent in Europe and now that they have begun to study in real earnest, will soon excel all others. Our heroic soldiers would have crushed the Germans under the very walls of Paris had they been better commanded. Finally, if Protestantism rallied around Prussia, France is the natural protector of Catholic interests."

These sentiments, partly expressed in the Chamber and partly in the President's interview with M. d'Arnoult, in point of candor and explicitness leave nothing to desire. Logically arranged they are here supposed to give a complete plan of action. France must keep the peace until she is armed. Once armed she will by the prowess and intelligence of her children again be the strongest military power in the world. Then comes the time for resuming the rank she has always held—the rank of a superior, not an equal. Pope and priest will aid her. Are they not already skirmishing in her interest in the very heart of Germany?

The action of M. Thiers, it is thought, is in perfect keeping with the more intelligible portion of his announced opinions. In accordance with the plan for the reorganization of the army, drawn up under his auspices, the whole of the troops embodied during the late campaign, inclusive of the Mobiles, will be incorporated into the military force of France. This comprehensive scheme at once raises to at least 1,600,000, a figure which the German troops, now estimated at 1,250,000, cannot in their present organization attain before 1880. Owing to full Landwehr and reserve system having been but recently introduced in the three Southern States, some eight or nine years must elapse, even with the new increased rate of recruiting, before the armies of this country will be numerically equal to the host M. Thiers intends to create by a single bill. A still formidable feature in the French plan is the contemplated increase of field artillery which from 1,900 guns is to be run up to 2,700. It is obvious that with her 1,800 pieces Germany would find it difficult to oppose these terrible odds, it being morally certain that the President will be enabled by the Legislative Assembly to carry out his military ideas. Politicians in this country begin to contemplate the expediency of preparing for contingencies. Of two eventualities one is thought to be approaching apace—either M. Thiers means to satisfy the longing of so many among his countrymen for a guerre de revanche, or a time will come when his immense armaments will tempt the fiery Gaul to plunge into a melee without a previous and properly matured plan. Either alternative is equally unpalatable here. I have heard it said in my presence that Prince Bismarck never had a better opportunity of displaying his talent than in the situation which has supervened since the restoration of peace. To avoid war as long as possible and anticipate adversaries if they are unrelentingly bent on another conflict [illegible] under existing circumstances. People have no wish to [illegible] a [illegible] surprise. They object to the return of the long period of suspense when for four years they dreaded invasion without any certainty as to the where or the when. Nor did they deem it prudent as in the last days of Napoleon to content themselves with parrying from day to day the diplomatic moves of the French Government, at the risk of being either outwitted or having to combat their impatient or impulsive antagonist at an inopportune moment. With all the newly acquired strength of her unity Germany, placed as she is in the center of the continent, is so easily taken at a disadvantage that she cannot feel at her ease while openly menaced by a wealthy powerful and courageous neighbor. She is also too industrious and steady going to live on with the shadow of a dreadful danger hanging over her, and [illegible] to devour her substance [illegible] in armaments—such being the case it is expected by many that the Chancellor will adopt a more active policy than that pursued by him between 1866 and 1870, and will either endeavor to convince France of the futility of her schemes or else impede their realization. If these anticipations be correct French statesmen would do well to consider at this early date whither they are drifting. More tangible than those diplomatic negotiations are adopted by the country. Some evidently point in a westerly direction, others are of a more general nature. Metz is having fresh fortifications added to it and is just being provided with a lot of guns scarcely inferior to the celebrated monster domesticated on Mount Valerien during the siege. Belfort, and the other French fortresses still occupied by the Germans, are placed in a state of defense which indicates an apprehension that they may have to be defended before the stipulated time of surrender arrives. The entrance to the Weser is being protected by colossal fortifications, a precaution to be speedily imitated at the mouth of the Elbe. Simultaneously with this, unwearied attention is paid to the efficiency of the troops. I doubt, indeed, whether the German method of augmenting the army by trained soldiers only, albeit slow and laborious, will be abandoned for the modern French system of embodying a promiscuous medley of raw recruits, but the addition of a thousand pieces to M. Thiers artillery will be scarcely regarded with the same equanimity.

THE AVAILABLE STRENGTH OF THE REPUBLIC

THE NEW FRENCH CANNON

of sept kilogrammes is an excellent weapon, and five hundred having been already made little more than a year may suffice to produce the full complement. It is a cast-steel breech loader, heavier than the Prussian six-pounder, upon which it seems to have been modeled, but firing a ball somewhat lighter than its prototype. The German authorities will be the more tempted to keep pace with their neighbor in developing this important branch of the service, as their own ordnance has been considerably improved since the war. If I am not mistaken, the new Berlin field gun has an incipient velocity of one thousand, seven hundred feet, and owing to this enormous propelling force fires with almost unfailing accuracy at from three thousand to four thousand feet. Another invention recently made and adopted regulates the aim of the fortress artillery. It is called the hydraulic brake, and by the application of an ingenious contrivance to the carriage causes the gun to resume its former position after discharge so as to render fresh pointing unnecessary. By this means the fire of the fortress and coast artillery will be rendered much more certain and rapid than heretofore. Mitrailleuses are discarded for field service, grape shot in its present high state of perfection being considered as serving all the purposes of the infantry cannon and not requiring a special gun. The needle rifle, although to be eventually replaced by some new pattern or other will continue to do duty for some years to come. The reduction of the bullet to a smaller size having added one hundred and fifty paces to its range, it is in its present shape looked upon as a match for the chassepot at least as regards ordinary field purposes. This partial metamorphosis was contemplated before the war, but, owing to the outbreak of hostilities, could not then be carried out. I believe that a large number of the rifles have already undergone alteration, and that the first batch will be distributed among the troops this summer. As you may be aware the innovation extends to the cartridge, the covering of which is increased in thickness in proportion to the decreased size of the ball. Nor does the cavalry escape the vigilant solicitude of the authorities, a commission having been formed to report upon its tactics and efficiency in the campaign. An entirely new branch is the aerostatic detachment, which will be shortly formed. The navy is, moreover, to be entirely re-equipped with cast steel guns—mostly, it seems, of the twelve and fifteen centimetre pattern, whose balls smash a six inch cuirass at a distance of 1,300 paces. A naval academy is being organized at Keil to afford naval officers an opportunity to obtain a higher scientific education and thus qualify themselves for the higher posts in their possession.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN

CALIFORNIA

From San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—A special car with the Philadelphia party including Samuel E. Stokes, W. J. Hershman and William V. McKean of the Philadelphia Ledger, and families, arrived overland on Saturday evening.

After speeches from various parties on the railroad question C. T. Hopkins offered resolutions to the effect that the proposition of the St. Louis delegation and the A. & P. R. R. Co., already published, is a fair and satisfactory one, and that the meeting accept it as such on behalf of San Francisco. These resolutions were adopted by acclamation amid tumultuous cheering. A voice from the rear of the hall ("that's the first square out railroad business we have had at this meeting.")

Mr Hopkins moved that in order to carry out the plan that a commissioner be appointed to accompany the St Louis delegation to the East at once, examine the books and papers of the A. & P. Co., confer with the citizens of St. Louis, agree upon details of a plan for joint operations, and report immediately to San Francisco. This was also carried. R. G. Sneath was appointed as such commissioner. Another resolution was adopted for the appointment of three commissioners instead of one. This was also carried, and Mayor Alvord appointed C. Hopkins and John J. Hager as such additional Commissioners. Irving M. Scott, the iron founder, then made a ringing speech, and pledged San Francisco to meet St. Louis half way, and said that there were now 18,000 tons of freight accumulated at New York for San Francisco, and there being no opposition the powers that be proposed to raise the tariff. He said that if forty train loads of freight was sufficient to furnish a pretext for increasing freight charges he wanted no better or stronger argument in favor of another railroad, and we could not have it built an hour too soon. He said San Francisco is terribly in earnest in this matter—meant business, and the people of the U. S. would soon see his remarks applied to them, and at their close, the meeting, which was the largest and most enthusiastic to the last, adjourned with cheers.

The first resolution offered by Hopkins was drawn by Alvin Hayward, who agrees to head the subscription with a half million or even a million dollars, and if the amount cannot be otherwise made up he says he will go five millions.

Suspicion having been raised that the shooting of a woman at the Garibaldi Guard Festival yesterday was not accidental, the police have arrested two persons and detained them, pending an investigation of the affair. Meanwhile the woman has been spirited away, or at least she has disappeared and cannot be found.

Chas. Lewis Moller, who struck Wm. Pollock, a colored passenger on the steamer Nebraska, from the effect of which blow he died, was arrested to-day and booked on a charge of murder.

The step father of little Katie Brenner who died from the effect of strychnine, which was placed on a piece of orange and left in her way, has been placed under arrest while the Coroner is investigating the matter. He made contradictory statements to the police concerning the affair, and there are circumstances connected with the case which have been withheld from the public for the present.

The dividend of $40 per share by the Crown Point to-day, is the largest in amount ever paid by any mining company on this coast.

The meeting of the St. Louis delegation, the Committee of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, and the Committee of 100, and citizens of San Francisco, on the 35 parallel road, met at 2 P. M., at the Chamber of Commerce Hall. Mr. Sneath called the meeting to order and invited Mayor Alvord to take the Chair. Mayor Brown, of St. Louis, was introduced and made a short speech on the necessity of a second road across the continent, and said the city of St. Louis, the county of St. Louis and the State of Missouri had invested over $17,000,000 in railroads some years since, and now found while some investments had not paid, others had, and the aggregate wealth and business of the city and State had so vastly increased as to repay them many fold for the amount paid out. He thought the best plan for the second road was to have it owned and controlled by one company, and that it would fail that form be too large and too valuable to ever pass into the hands of any opposing company or monopoly. If San Francisco would raise $10,000,000 or $15,000,000, to be invested, St. Louis would raise as much more, and each have thirteen or fourteen representations in the Board of Directors. It would cost, he believed, about $30,000,000 to build a road from San Francisco to Colorado, and both companies, (if there were two) would be compelled to go into the market to raise money and bonds, and thus interfere with each other. Though if the two cities talked the matter over quietly together they could build the road between them, and that when the road was built, the stock would, in his opinion, be worth dollar for dollar. The road, so far as built is the finest on the continent. He had traveled over its length and back at the rate of 37 miles per hour, and at that rate, the trip from St. Louis to San Francisco could be made in three days. Mr. Stokes, of St. Louis, and ex-Lt. Gov. Stannard, of Missouri, followed with speeches mostly devoted to statistics and not to the point in question of how to secure the building of the road. The meeting is still going on.

The following dispatch was read in the Board of Brokers this evening:

"WASHINGTON, May 6.—Hon. William Alvord, Chairman of the Committee of One Hundred: San Francisco must stand firm and all together, without faltering. San Francisco must have a people's railroad of her own, connecting with all transcontinental roads, otherwise there can be no safety now or hereafter. Without this, all is delusion, or worse. (Signed) E. CASSERLY."

While the robbers were going through the box the passengers were busy secreting their coin and valuables, but they were not disturbed.

Henry Ward Beecher, in a recent lecture on Wall street, delivered in Boston, said: "I have buried four generations of men from Wall street in twenty-five years. Wall street is a dunghill of mushrooms. There is a vast growth of men in every single year, and every year they are trampled down in hosts. I know but one or two men in that time who have been able to make permanent gains and hold their gains. And they didn't do it by speculation, they added other means of accumulation, which were the foundation of their stability, and I believe that all men are trying to be rich in uncanny ways, and trying to be rich without paying for what they get."

NASAL CATARRH.

[DISEASE TENDING TO CONSUMPTION.]

THIS IS A CHRONIC AFFECTION OF THE MUCOUS membrane of the nostrils or the throat, caused by irritation or inflammation, and attended by more or less discharge. It is one of the most [illegible], most disgusting and finally, most destructive of [illegible] to the variable [illegible] of our health latitude.

In its early stages Catarrh often fails to attract the patient's attention, so insidious is its approach. This is an unfortunate circumstance, [illegible] the most favorable period for treatment is thus unimproved, and [illegible] of the peculiar disposition of this [illegible] to the frontal sinuses, backward through the tubes to the middle ear, and down [illegible] the [illegible], trachea, and lungs to the air cells of the [illegible].

The discharge from the affected part is at first a clear fluid, which may [illegible] it [illegible] to be of a more than usually acrid [illegible]. As time goes on this gives place to a fluid that is thicker, and of a yellowish green color, and still later this may be succeeded by thick flakes or [illegible].

In all the more advanced stages the [illegible] are generally of an offensive odor, [illegible] to one's friends and to the patient [illegible] while his sense of smell [illegible]. This [illegible] from the odor becomes almost beyond [illegible], as [illegible] the delicate bones of the nose [illegible].

Some cases early [illegible] the form of Dry [illegible]. There is then a feeling of [illegible] heat and [illegible] in the nostrils, which are often (one or both of them) closed by thickening of the mucous [illegible], and then a difficulty of breathing becomes a [illegible].

On examining the nostrils in [illegible], with instruments specially adapted to that purpose, we find their lining membrane thickened and of a deeper color than in health. There are soon little points of ulceration, upon which the secretion becomes hardened and [illegible]. When these are picked off the [illegible] is irritated and frequently bleeds profusely.

In each case of Catarrh the [illegible] symptoms are determined by the direction in which the [illegible]. If this be upward there may be pain over and [illegible] the eyes, obstruction of the lachrymal ducts [illegible] the tears to flow over the [illegible], and [illegible] inflammation of the eyes. If backward, there will be thickening of the walls of the [illegible], and consequent tendency to their obstruction, [illegible] of the middle ear, buzzing sounds in the head and [illegible] of hearing. When the [illegible], the voice becomes hoarse or [illegible], and [illegible] cough comes on, with expectoration, and [illegible] to be followed too often by [illegible].

In cases where the [illegible] of the [illegible] not only is the offensive [illegible] of the [illegible], but there is a liability to [illegible], which are flattening of the nose.

The swallowing of catarrhal [illegible] the functions of the stomach, causing [illegible] and loss of appetite. Debility, [illegible] and disturbance of mind soon follow. In some [illegible] the mental affection is one of irritability, the patient being unduly annoyed by all the little perplexities of life. In others the prominent feeling is that of [illegible] or despondency of spirits, when the invalid can see no hope for himself or his affairs.

Allusion has been made to the extension of Catarrh by continuity of surface along the [illegible] to the substance of the lungs, thus [illegible] and Death. In this connection it [illegible] be noted that the air which enters the [illegible] of a patient is, every breath of it, poisoned by [illegible] from the foul secretions of the diseased [illegible]. By such air the blood cannot be properly [illegible] and made fit to impart healthy vigor in its unending [illegible] to all and every part of the animal mechanism. One would [illegible] that this consideration alone would be sufficient to [illegible] every person thus afflicted to make early [illegible] for relief.

The treatment of Catarrh is in part [illegible], whereby the energies of the whole system are [illegible] to aid in expelling its destructive enemy. It is in part local, whereby the discharge is made less [illegible] and finally arrested, and [illegible] the [illegible] surface is healed and restored to [illegible].

By means of new and ingenious [illegible], Dr. [illegible] is able in Catarrh and all other [illegible] of the [illegible] tory organs, to apply his [illegible] directly to the [illegible] of localities. Treatment is thus made more [illegible] as well as less disagreeable. In many cases the first [illegible] of the topical treatment will change the [illegible] of the disease and materially purify the [illegible].

Patronage and Its Abuses

Reform [illegible] is much talked [illegible] of [illegible] Democratic [illegible] subject [illegible] Democratic [illegible] with [illegible] patronage [illegible] thought [illegible] election [illegible] cratic [illegible] need [illegible] present [illegible] has [illegible] any other [illegible] tem [illegible] under Democratic rule your Democratic reformer still cannot repress his indignation. In his opinion Grant won't do. He doesn't come up to the elevated place of public morality on which the Democrats stand.

The last administration suited the Democratic idea better. No fault was found with President Johnson. When he declared that no man should eat his Johnson's bread and butter who did not support his administration and work for the success of the Democratic party those of that party who are now preaching reform applauded. They had no objection to the use of Government patronage for party purpose under such circumstances.

Take a further illustration of the Democratic idea and with it of Democratic practice. When Johnson was President a circular was prepared, was printed at the public expense and was dispatched by the Departments to all the office holders in the country, requiring them to support President Johnson, to assist the Democratic party and to contribute money for a national campaign fund. This was the Democratic idea of purity in the civil service. This was their idea of keeping Government patronage and influence out of politics. If such a circular should be sent around now, calling on all Federal officials to rally to the support of Grant and to furnish money for the campaign, what a storm would be raised!

In our State the Democratic idea of a civil service free from the corruptions of politics has also displayed itself. At the last session of the Legislature powers and spoils were placed in the hands of Governor Grover which have enabled him to make himself the autocrat of his party. The "litigant bill" was simply a device to help the party at the expense of the public. Grover by adroit use of the "patronage" thus placed at his disposal, has subsidized the whole press of his party in the State. He has used the legislation on swamp lands, the locks swindle, the patronage of the penitentiary, etc all to strengthen himself and build his party up. These are some of the methods of "civil service reform" which are adopted by those who are so fond of preaching against the use of "patronage" for party purposes.

On the whole it is pretty evident that these are not the people to look to for genuine reform. Those who invented the system of using official patronage for party service, and who have at all times carried it to its worst extremes are hardly the ones to amend it.

The Republican Primaries

The Republican primaries for Multnomah county will be held to-day beginning at 1 o'clock P M. From the interest that is manifested we judge there will be an unusual attendance. We trust all Republicans will come out. Usually too little attention has been paid to the primary meetings. Attendance on such occasions has often been shirked as a disagreeable duty. But there is quite as much need of attending a primary as a general election. The voter can make himself felt in his party only by being present at the primary meeting. It is the common privilege of all to work in the primary for such candidates as they may think proper to support. It is the privilege of any number of men to combine for the nomination of persons of their choice, and party usage good faith, and a regard for the paramount principles of the party, require that the majority shall govern and that the minority shall submit. Before the nominations are made Republicans are free to express their choice within the party. After the nominations are made all are expected to fall in and give the ticket a cordial support. Good men and representative citizens only, should be chosen for the County Convention. The party may then rely on getting a representative ticket. We trust there will be a general turn out to-day.

The Pittsburg Commercial which until recently appeared inclined rather "Liberally" to consider the charges against President Grant, in a long article on the Presidency shows the Administration completely vindicated. We quote a paragraph.

In recent political developments we confess ourselves quite unable to perceive any signs sufficient to justify anxiety on the part of the supporters of the Administration, or confidence on the part of its impugners. The enlightened common sense of the American people is the tribunal to which each of the parties in the controversy makes its appeal and whatever may be the faults or deficiencies of the court, we do not believe that, with time and opportunity for inquiry and reflection, it is going to withdraw its trust from General Grant on account of any reasons which it is in the power of opponents to allege.

Mr Greeley fiercely denounced Gratz Brown and the bolting movement in Missouri less than two years ago. He is now on a bolting ticket with Gratz, and proposes to bring about such results throughout the United States as were brought about in Missouri,—that is to say a general Democratic triumph and the elevation of such men as Frank Blair to power.

Who sent for Williams? Rumor has it that he comes here at the bidding of one man, who aspires to monopolize the commercial liberties of the people of Oregon.—Herald

This is a rumor of your own invention. It is a slander as well as a rumor. It is of a piece with other fabrications of the campaign.

The New York Independent said that the platform of the Cincinnati Convention would consist of "studied compromises and omissions," that it would be merely a system of political jugglery too ambiguous to have practical power with the people. This was prophetic.

None but Republicans should be allowed to vote in the primaries to-day. Democrats often manifest a desire to participate in Republican primaries for the purpose of effecting disorganization. They must be rigorously ruled out.

Speaking of a Chinaman who broke from the Idaho Territorial prison lately the Statesman says: His name is Ah Hod not On Gow as we stated the other day, and he was sentenced Oct 15 1869 to five years, consequently he has two and a half years to serve. Some tell us he is the wrong Chinaman, not the one that committed the assault for which this one was convicted. Mr Pinkham, the U S Marshal, tells us he is quite sure of catching him. We would suggest if he is the wrong one and he cannot catch the guilty one he should catch some other Chinaman if the time has got to be served out; one poor innocent fellow had not ought to serve the whole of it as any other one would do just as well.

The Prohet of Psalem

From the Statesman

It came to pass in Oregon in the latter days of the reign of the "Sneezer" that a prophet from the mighty city of Psalem which standeth in the region round about the Penitentiary went to and fro in the land and spake much with his mouth.

And the prophet was not fair to look upon for hunger dwelt upon his face and he was sore afflicted with weakness of the knees.

And it came to pass that the people seeing these things marveled much among themselves and said: This man hath worms and will surely die.

And it came to pass when he lifted up his voice and prophesied, that the people trembled and were sore afraid for they saw that he spake through his nostrils after the manner of the yankee who dwelleth afar off by the sea shore and is a carver of wooden images of the thighs of swine.

And he smote the people with much woful music of the chin until they were exceeding sorrowful and cried out to him with one voice: Give unto us a rest.

And the prophet answered them darkly for he spake in parables and verily the people understood him not.

And the people counselling one with another cried out: "Show unto us, O prophet, what manner of evil shall fall upon us. For they were a righteous people and had webs upon their feet after the manner of water fowl.

And he answered them saying: Verily I unto you that the heathenchinee stand th with his head downward upon the nether side of the earth. And he liveth upon the flesh of rats and verily the eyes of his head are like nuts, the fruit of the almond tree and as for his hair doth it not hang down after the manner of the tails of young swine. And I say unto you that the heathen Chinee shall fall upon you and shall smite you grievously with [illegible] sticks. Verily shall ye become food for his wrath by him shall ye be gobbled up.

And there was wailing in the land, and the tribes whose habitation is by the mighty river Soapcreek cast themselves down before him saying: He speaketh as one inspired and these things shall surely come to pass.

And the people were sore afraid, for they said among themselves: Behold they that dwell by the mighty river Soapcreek are a warlike people and fear hath come upon them.

And they besought the prophet saying: Deliver us from the anger of him that dwelleth with his head downward upon the nether side of the earth.

Open unto us the path of safety for verily it seemeth unto us that our enemy the heathen chinee gobbleth all that stand before him.

And he answered them saying: "Behold I am come to deliver you. Verily shall I suffer that ye may be saved. Make me thy ruler therefore a ruler over the land.

And the prophet was made a ruler over the land and the people fell down before him but he forbade them saying: One standeth behind me who is greater than I and whose shoes I am not worthy to stir up; worship ye therefore Jonnef which signifieth Master.

And the people worshipped Jonnef.

And it came to pass that the ruler took unto himself a servant and they were bone of one bone and flesh of one flesh, so that the people beholding these things called their name Iangilfry which signifieth inseparable.

And the ruler appointed Billwatkins as chief keeper of the prison that standeth in the plain beyond Psalem. And the keeper of the prison was a righteous man and a slayer of scribes.

An action for $10 000 against the corporation of the city of New York, of which the Health Department is a branch, has been commenced in the Supreme Court for the vaccination of a child named Alice Hollingworth by the Health Department without the permission and in direct opposition to the expressed wish of the parents. The complaint specifies two charges of a very serious character viz: First, a grievous assault upon the child; second, the complete destruction of the child's health and constitution by scrofula produced by vaccination.

The following from the Eugene Guard is a specimen of the tone of that journal: "Acker man was in the Circuit Court yesterday, made a citizen of the G d [illegible] Grant be damned devil distracted country, formerly distinguished from other countries by the appellation of United States." Blackguard Pomeroy couldn't well beat that and wouldn't publish anything with so little point to it.

The Guard says: On Monday morning the down train ran over and killed the team of Chas Kirk about a mile below Eugene City. At 10 o'clock three men were agreed upon to appraise the horses and reported them to be worth two hundred dollars. Mr Underwood telegraphed the facts to the railroad company at Portland and before noon he received an order to pay Mr Kirk the full amount, which was done. Such promptness is surely commendable.

The following brief summary is gleaned from the Sentinel of April 20th: The weather was fine and work was being resumed in a number of claims, some paying expenses, others paying well. On Amador Creek the Taylor Company were erecting machinery. They had got a prospect of six dollars. The Ross Company on Lightning Creek took out over one hundred ounces for the week and their ground continued to look well. On Harvey Creek the Cummings Company had given out a contract for ten thousand feet of lumber. A considerable quantity of quartz from the Mosquito ledge was being crushed and tested. It is understood that a company is in course of formation for the purpose of thoroughly prospecting the ledge.

LIVE LONG AND PROSPER.—It is very common to represent this continent as unfavorable to the highest and best types of life and our Yankee civilization as too rushing for us to live long upon the earth. Some one has taken pains quite recently to examine the vital statistics of this country and the countries of Europe. According to this statistician the average death rate in this country is one to eighty one, while in Europe it is one to forty two. The European bills of mortality are as follows:

	Inhabitants
England	1 death to every 4[illegible]
Denmark	1 death to every 45
Belgium	1 death to every 4[illegible]
Norway and Sweden	1 death to every 4[illegible]
Austria	1 death to every 40
Prussia	1 death to every 3[illegible]
France	1 death to every 42

The average yearly proportion of deaths to the population in the various States and Territories of this country is as follows:

New England States	[illegible]
Middle States	1 in 58
Southern States	1 in [illegible]0
Western States	1 in 81
Northwestern States	1 in 130
Pacific States	[illegible]11

If then one wants to live long and prosper, the United States is the place for him. Oregon is the healthiest nook in this mighty nation, while outlandish Arkansas is the other extreme. It is evidently a longer process as well as a pleasanter and more honorable one to wear out than to rust out.

The total loss sustained by all insurance companies except those of Illinois in the great fire is given by the New York Board of Underwriters at $68 144 538. The Illinois companies losses foot $13 [illegible] and the grand total $12 022 538. The probable dividends of the insolvent companies are as follows: Those of New York city [illegible] per cent; of New York State [illegible] per cent; New England and other [illegible] per cent. RAILROAD MATTERS —[illegible] Superintendent of Construction [illegible] California railroad the [illegible] completed to Bates Station [illegible] Eugene City This makes [illegible] miles from the East [illegible] trains are running beyond Eugene [illegible] the track carrying passengers and mail [illegible] a connection with the stage [illegible] clar trains will not be run [illegible] the track [illegible] finished by about the first of June [illegible] weather prove good The [illegible] directed through the rugged canyons of P[illegible] Creek Work necessarily progresses very slowly through this region The [illegible] the rock a number of times and several bridges are required to be built The [illegible] trusses are to be constructed along the road [illegible] a distance of a few miles The roads owing to the late and continued rains are in a wretched condition, and are almost impassable to teams for the [illegible] Great difficulty [illegible] experienced in getting the timbers on the ground The rails has to be laid, and the bridge materials conveyed in detail to the required spots

Preliminary surveys for the line have been made from Oakland, beyond to the Rogue River Mountains This range of mountains is the blending, so to speak, of the Cascade and Coast ranges and [illegible] by far the most serious obstacle opposing the progress of the road south from Portland [illegible] mountains trend down from the east and west, cross the level country between, and separate by their rugged and precipitous declivities the Umpqua and Rogue river valleys To run a road through these mountains will require time, labor, and an immense expenditure of money [illegible] According to the latest surveys, two long [illegible] will be unavoidable besides numerous [illegible] stretches of trestle work The summit of this range attains an altitude of 2,400 feet This will be overcome by a stretch of road about 25 miles long exceeding in many places the maximum grade, 80 feet to the mile This grade will be varied according to the character of the country, and the requirements of the road power etc as 117 feet per mile is allowed when the declivity of the country renders a less grade impracticable The work is being pushed forward with the spirit and enterprise which prognosticates its early completion The distance between the two [illegible] uncompleted, is daily decreasing and it is safe to predict that within the next eighteen [illegible], that distance will be so materially short [illegible] that there will be an almost unbroken line of railway from Portland to Sacramento The other line of railroad is advancing almost as rapidly as this end and every hour the iron rails are moving forward to grasp in an iron clutch each other's hand, which is to unite the commercial [illegible] of this growing and expanding State with those of the Golden State, and [illegible] along the shining way" of the endless, [illegible] track, with the opulent East, and the [illegible] teeming West. The people of Oregon can safely set it down as the decree of destiny that the days of the old stage coach, which has faithfully performed its allotted mission in the progress of civilization, must expire soon in the arms of a [illegible], more rapid and comprehensive enterprise The age of steam and iron is dawning

NICHOLSON PAVEMENT —A portion of the defective Nicholson pavement on Front street near Washington is being taken up and new materials laid down We observe along Front and First [illegible] in many places defective pavement One of the principal reasons for this is that there exists such a poor system of sewerage that quantities of water accumulates and stands on the pavement Every crevice or available space between the blocks, gravel and asphaltum is thoroughly [illegible] with the aqueous fluid It is true that the blocks of wood are boiled in a preparation of coal tar, which is well calculated to resist the decaying effects of alternate wet and dry But the long wet spell of winter and the parching heat of summer, alternately immersing and drying the [illegible], which expands and contracts according to each influence, soon will cause the pavement yield Add to this that at all seasons of the year heavily loaded wagons, trucks and drays are passing and re passing constantly The blocks become loose the tarry preparation loses its resisting and adhesive qualities, and the rapid decay of pavement follows. To preserve the pavement intact, and to cause it to resist the decaying effects of the [illegible], a better and more uniform system of [illegible] ought to be inaugurated in Portland

LOST HIS WAY —We are informed that Henry [illegible], whose brother is a practicing attorney in this city, and who was reported last week to have mysteriously disappeared has reached his [illegible] home in Linn county in safety It appears that he started from Marion Station, near [illegible], to go to his father s house, south of [illegible], some miles He took a wrong trail which [illegible] through a stretch of forest, and so he became [illegible] and wandered about for several days [illegible] accounts for his disappearance The intelligence in regard to his reaching home was received [illegible] a dispatch yesterday, to his brother whose mind has been set at ease about the matter

PICNIC BY THE RED MEN —Elsewhere will be found the advertisement respecting the proposed picnic excursion to be given under the auspices of the Order of Red Men The ground has been selected—a beautiful little grove on Sauvie s Island—and the day will be Monday the 13th inst The Oregon Steam Navigation Company s elegant steamer Emma Hayward has been chartered for the occasion Music will be furnished by the East Portland Brass Band The excursionists will leave the wharf precisely at 9 o clock A. M for the picnic grounds, and will return in the evening

ON THE WAY —Mr Aaron Bushwier so well [illegible] in this city, has been at Washington City for several months past, for the purpose of investigating the payment of bounties to discharged soldiers in Oregon and Washington Territory which have been fraudulently drawn by some persons He left for New York on the 14th of last [illegible], intending to remain there a short time and then start for Oregon He is most probably now on his way here

SOON CONNECT —At the rapid rate at which the earth is being carried from the East Side [illegible] along the new line of route for the railroad south of the trestle-work a junction will soon be [illegible] between the made track and the cut [illegible] of J B Stephens' house Grading beyond that point, to where the new intersects the old line of road, is progressing as fast as a large gang of Chinamen can perform the work

CHANCE TO WORK —To those who are industriously inclined there is no possible reason to [illegible] idle a single day Portland is literally overflowing with men having no steady and remunerative employment The North Pacific Railroad Company are needing men constantly by the gangs, and are unable to procure them Persons of "leisure" ought not to prate of no work to get" while this is the case

[illegible] OF THE LATE E H DAY —The remains of the late Ephraim H Day were followed to the Lone Fir Cemetery yesterday by a large [illegible] of friends The members of the several Masonic Lodges of the city attended The body [illegible] consigned to the grave with the usual impressive rites of that order The East Portland Brass Band was in attendance and discoursed sad and [illegible] strains of music

[illegible] FOR A LOCATION —We learn that a party is engaged in examining the Willamette river at this place to find the most favorable location for the proposed bridge. The plans and specifications of this important work have been [illegible] from Washington by Colonel W W [illegible], and will be submitted to the Common Council at its next meeting for acceptance by that body

FOR SAN FRANCISCO —The steamship Idaho [illegible] will be due to night It is announced to sail for the North with freight and passengers on [illegible] day 11th inst The Columbia which has been on the Portland Victoria line for the last [illegible] years, will sail for San Francisco with freight and passengers on the same day from this port

BEEF CATTLE.—Twenty head of beef cattle were brought down the river yesterday from East [illegible] Oregon. These cattle are designed to supply our depleted meat markets here This will be [illegible] news as good meat has been a rare commodity for some time

SOCIABLE —The Ladies Furnishing Society of the Taylor street M E Church held their May [illegible] in the lecture-room of the church last evening

[illegible] SOCIETY —The Ladies Relief Society will meet at the usual place to day at 2 o clock P. M.

A REFORM SCHOOL NEEDED —Some time ago a number of our enterprising philanthropic citizens were agitating the question of a Reform School in this city It was to be established and conducted on the same principle as similar schools in the larger cities of the Atlantic States After a partial effort in the direction indicated the subject was dropped apparently by common consent and nothing more has been heard of the matter

[illegible] such a humane institution is one of the [illegible] of a [illegible] through the [illegible] around on [illegible] From one to [illegible] day in [illegible] and from twenty five to thirty—every [illegible] ranging in years from [illegible] We think without exaggeration [illegible] favorably [illegible] every [illegible] tion with any class of boys to be found in the coast A sense of truth compels us [illegible] thus Boys here have not enjoyed [illegible] as many opportunities for [illegible] as in many of the larger cities or the simple reason that there are not so many [illegible] basing influences at work to [illegible] the morals and manners of our youth But that class of boys to which we more especially refer have shown themselves to be apt scholars in vice and immorality as far as the opportunities for acquiring such have extended We have frequently observed boys not more than eight or ten years old with either a pipe or cigar constantly in their mouths and to whom the lowest [illegible] vile obscenity or foul blasphemy was no too bad for them to utter These boys are seen about street corners loafing around without any apparent employment during the day and even to a late hour of the night Possessing an affinity of tastes they congregate together and amuse themselves by pandering to a most depraved nature Morality cannot view these young candidates for the jails and prison houses, without an instinctive shudder. Viewing such young experts in the school of crime it requires no prophetic eye to determine where the inmates of penitentiaries the future is to furnish Such materials can be seen in the class of juveniles of which we have been speaking What the boys want is a force where good habits can be enforced—industry taught morality and good principles inculcated and where the more sacred influences of religion can be brought to bear on their calloused natures All these ameliorating results can be accomplished by the founding of a Reform School in Portland In time to come it would save our citizens from being taxed to support criminals and check the growth of pauperism

INSTALLATION —At the regular meeting of Multnomah Lodge No 12, I O G T , held on Saturday evening last the following elected and appointed officers were installed by G W C T Jacob Stitzel W C T , C W Sears W R H S , Miss Alice Heroy W L H S Miss Mary E Sanders W A T , Miss Olive Clay, W S C E Hunt W A S , Miss E A Ellerson, W F S , J B Garrison W T, Miss I M Anderson W M D Plants W D M Miss F Fisher W I G , Miss Mary A Harrington, W O G J Vollum W C E F Heroy P W C T James A Smith

DOLLY VARDENS —No one can be happy without a Dolly Varden something

The heathen Chinee has got so that he wears a Dolly Varden queue now.

Linn county couples are married in buggies They say it is the Dolly Varden style

Some of the Southern Legislatures are now gotten up in Dolly Varden patterns—mixed black and white

Dolly Varden night caps and corsets are becoming popular Those who have seen them say they are perfectly sweet

HAVEN'T SEEN HIM —A San Francisco exchange thus alludes to a melancholy event Any person learning the whereabouts of a young man named Smith, who attempted to steal a bottle of benzine this morning with a lighted candle standing near the bottle will confer a favor on his sister at the Mission, by reporting the same to her, as his clothes will fit her husband who is badly in need of them For the information of the afflicted sister we will state that Smith hasn t been seen in these parts

A DISAPPOINTMENT —By some means the impression became general at Eugene City on Sunday evening that Attorney General Williams was to arrive at that place on the construction train from the end of the track A large number of his friends assembled at the depot in anticipation of his coming Considerable disappointment was felt and expressed on account of his non arrival His friends were determined to receive him in a proper manner if he had been among the passengers.

SOLD OUT —It is stated on what purports to be authentic information that the Northern Pacific Railroad Company have purchased out the Oregon Steam Navigation Company It is now quite probable that the numerous rumors to that effect which have filled of late the public ear and agitated the public mind, are founded on truth

From the New York Com[illegible] Ad r ar

Fifth A enue H[illegible] April [illegible]

I am going to the Cincinnati Convention I m sick of politics and I m go ng [illegible] the regular Republican sh p and start on [illegible] farewell voyage with Mr Greeley [illegible] I e joined Horace and Charles [illegible] I ke [illegible] men I like men who when the life f the Republic was threatened shouldered their muskets and—and—and— I don t like men who like Grant staid in New York during the war and abused the fighting Generals Grant won t do for me O no I want a military man—a man who like Mr Greeley risked his life and carried the old flag all over—the City Hall yard and who rallied at the bugle call of freedom—up at Chappaqua

Don t talk to me about signing our political death warrants Don t we remember the splendid success of Henry J Raymond when he seceded from the party and went over to Philadelphia? Don t we have before us the brilliant history of Senator Doolittle? Don t we refer with pride to the triumphant success of Senator Grimes? Have we not before us the brilliant example of Chief Justice Chase and Andy Johnson who marched on to glory and left the old Republican ship with Grant and Wilson and Morton to go to the d—dey—devil?

Yes history will repeat itself and the same glory awaits us that awaited Chase and Grimes and Doolittle Don t talk to Horace and I, the old political hive is full and we are bound to swarm We leave the old hive and the old Republican honey gathered from Kansas, from emancipation and a republic saved, to Grant and Sickles and those scoundrels who carried the old stars and stripes from safe places in Boston and Philadelphia and ruthlessly exposed the dear old flag to be shot at by the rebels of Virginia and South Carolina.

We are bound to be right If you ask us if we are high tariff to suit New England or low tariff to suit the West we answer emphatically—yes!

We propose to abolish all crime—to do away with custom houses and have all vessels land at some other place

We propose to stop taxation and pay the national debt out of our own pocket—if we have to steal every cent in the Treasury to do it In fact if there is anything in this world which we as a party openly detest it is one thing more than another—and we pledge ourselves to abolish it

If you ask us if we are for high tariff to suit Mr Greeley or low tariff to suit George Pendleton, we admit emphatically that we are

Grant has only three principles in view—to have peace contentment and pay the national debt, while we have eight principles—five loaves, two fishes and a place in the custom house

Grant says let Jeff Davis and Beauregard stay where they are while we say give them amnesty and front seats in Congress

For this reason I to-day become a prodigal and go off with Mr Greeley to live on the Cincinnati husks resolving never to come back till they promise to kill the fatted Custom House calf, and give us the sweet bread and sirloin

But to be serious—

Ruf, Andres, Mr G C Collins and a good many of the Vice Presidents of the Greeley anti-Grant meeting of the Cooper Institute tell me that their names were used without their knowledge or consent

What would you think of a business concern which would use a hundred names without the perm[ission] of the owner to float an apparent solvency? The fact is these long lists of Vice Presidents attached to political meetings never mean anything They always are put down right from the directory without the owners of the names being consulted at all

A Gentleman in conversation with Senator Trumbull, at the Fifth avenue asked him how he liked the Cooper Institute meeting

"Well," said the Senator it was a big meeting, but the New York folks left the speakers to do all the work

"How is that, Senator?" asked the gentleman

"Why, the resolutions were as weak as water—nothing in them about the tariff nor anything else that amounted to anything—and, if we can t get up better resolutions in Cincinnati, we d better quit the issue

"Who is the best man Senator for the Cincinnati Convention?" asked the gentleman

"O, we ve got but one strong available man," said the Senator "and that is Horace Greeley I go for Mr Greeley heart and soul, and he s the only man we can run in opposition to Grant and beat him and he s my candidate at the Cincinnati Convention"

Dr Lowring, of Boston who came on to attend the Grant meeting night before last, says "The Greeley departurites can t depend upon Sumner at all—in fact Senator Morton brings the news from Washington that Sumner has concluded not to go with either party but to stand still and see how things are likely to come out."

Dr Lowring is going to see Greeley to day and try to persuade him to abandon his new departure idea, for all New England is against it, and total political destruction awaits every Republican who gets into the Cincinnati ship

What Happened when Horace Greeley was [illegible] President

The following appeared in the Philadelphia Sunday Dispatch last July Recent events invest it with new interest It is supposed to have been written in 1892 by Max Adeler who was a witness of the terrible scenes which o curred at the time of which the story tells The English satire, "The Battle of Dorking supplied the suggestion for this prophetic tale

THE CONQUEST OF AMERICA

You ask me to tell you my children of the events which immediately preceded the destruction of the once great American Union and the capture of the country by its present European rulers, and to say something also of the causes which led to these deplorable results I undertake the task with a heavy heart, for when I revert to the terrible time I cannot help contrasting our proud condition up to that fatal year with the humiliating position [occu]pied now by the American people The story is a short one In the fall of 1872 Horace Greeley the editor of a New York newspaper, was elected President of the United States. The people voted for him because they believed him to be an honest man And so he was But he was also vain and w[ea]k, and he entertained certain fanatical and preposterous notions—about agricultural matters, for instance—which he was determined to force upon the people at all hazards and despite all opposition He believed among other things that every man ought to go to the West to earn his bread and long before he was chosen President he used to advise everybody to move to that region as a cure for all the disasters which befall the human family As soon as he reached the Executive Mansion, which we use to call the White House President Greeley organized an army of two hundred tho[usan]d men and proceeded to

of the seaboard States westward at the point of the bayonet The utmost violence was used Those who resisted were shot down and their dead bodies were carried off to a national factory which the President had established for making some kind of a fantastical fertilizer All the large cities of the East were depopulated and the towns were entirely empty The army swept before it millions of men women and children until the vast plains west of Kansas were reached when the pursuit ceased and the army was drawn [u]p in a continuous line with orders to shoot any person who attempted to visit the East [illegible] hundreds of thousands of these poor creatures perished of starvation This seemed to frighten President Greeley and he [illegible] to Congress [illegible] that seven hundred thousand volumes [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] ble to interpret the [illegible] the following [illegible] The Czar of Russia could [illegible] washed himself with the [illegible] ocean once a day [illegible] was [illegible] telegraphed to Russia by the Russian Minister and the

but he instantly declared war Just at this time President Greeley undertook to write some letters to Prince Bismarck upon the subject of potato rot and after giving his singular views at great length he concluded with the statement that if the Emperor William said that [a]bsol[ute] plowing as not good in light soils or that guano was better than bone-dust he was a [illegible] villain and a slave Of course the Emperor immediately declared war and became an ally of Russia and of England against which latter country Greeley had actually begun hostilities already because the Queen in her speech from the throne had declared the [illegible] of a tariff on pig iron incendiary and calculated to disturb the peace of nations Unhappily this was not the full measure of our disasters The President has sent to the Emperor of Austria a copy of his book What I know [illegible] with his autograph [illegible] leaf The Emperor must [illegible] the signature for a

and [illegible] readily joined in the war against the United States while the [illegible] to the same act by [illegible] that when the French Minister came to call upon Greeley to present his credentials [illegible] was writing an editorial at the time not comprehending the French language [illegible] mistook the embassador for a beggar and without looking up handed him a quarter and an order for a clean shirt and said to him Go West young man—go West So all these nations joined in making war upon the United States They swooped down upon our coasts and landed without opposition for the exposed portions of our unhappy country were absolutely deserted The President was afraid to call away the army from Kansas at first for fear the outrage [illegible] would come east in spite of him [illegible] he [illegible] the army to [illegible] Before the troops reached Cincinnati the foreigners had seized Washington and all the country east of the Ohio [illegible] had hung the President the Cabinet [illegible] every member of Congress The army disbanded and the invaders moved for the far West where they found the population because they had followed the advice of Greeley s book to Try for the first crop to raise limes and don t plant more than a bushel of quicklime in a hill! Of course these wretched people were at the mercy of the enemy who—to his credit be it said—treated them kindly fed them, and brought them back to their old homes You know what followed—how Prince Frederick William of Prussia ascended the American throne and other humiliations that ensued It was a fearful blow to Republicanism—a blow from which it will never recover It made us who were freemen a nation of slaves It was all the result of our blind confidence in a misguided old man who thought himself a philosopher but who was actually a fool May heaven preserve you my children from the remorse I feel when I remember that I voted for that bucolic old editor

"Intelligent gentlemen residents of the San Joaquin Valley assure us that the Wheat prospects of that part of the State have been lau[nche]d to a higher pitch than they will bear The northers have extracted much moisture from the soil and the late scanty rains are but a poor compensation Some of the grain fields already show signs of drouth Those on sandy soils are parched and on a clay and rich soils the [illegible] begins to appear In both cases the crops will have [illegible] into hay to give the farmer a return for his labor It is now certain that the crop of this year has been largely overestimated This may effect favorably the price of grain in Oregon
